Garden of the Lost and Abandoned: The Extraordinary Story of One Ordinary Woman and the Children She Saves by Jessica Yu. The problem by most lights is overwhelming: at least 5,000 children live on the streets of Uganda’s capital city of Kampala. Some forget the names of their villages. The youngest may not know the names of their parents.

Garden of the Lost and Abandoned is the story of Gladys Kalibbala, a part time journalist on a mission to help the children living on the streets of Uganda.

Kalibbala has a feature column in the Kampala newspaper New Vision, in which she tries to reunite lost and/or abandoned children with their families—or to place the youngsters in settings where they will have a chance. The author delivers a moving collection of cases that have confronted Kalibbala, some of which have produced remarkable success and others, not so much.

The subplot of Gladys’s garden—her precarious dream of providing a home and livelihood for her vulnerable charges—adds fascinating depth. Garden of the Lost and Abandoned chronicles one woman’s altruism, both ordinary and extraordinary, in a way that is impossible to forget, and impossible not to take to heart.
