“Protecting the Planet is THE book to read to understand every aspect of climate change, from the politics to the science to the movement.” —Thom Hartmann, author of The Last Hours of Ancient Sunlight “Protecting the Planet is not only an explanation of climate change, its beginning, and its impact, but gives readers a thorough understanding of the history of environmental stewardship.

The introduction bears sections tailored from both authors’ perspectives. The book tends to put their perspectives in order so that readers enjoy a better sense about where protecting the planet is going. From science to politics, the book promises a deep understanding of what we as a people are doing to the Earth and how to mend our ways.
